ground till morning, when again resuming his journey he at length arrived at home.

But a greater difficulty than the distance to grist-mills was oftentimes experienced by these pioneers in the great scarcity of grain, as it sometimes could not be had at any price short of going from 50 to 100 miles "down the river." The writer has often heard his father tell of having, when a boy, to go to Bradford, and sometimes further down the river, in company with others and get a "horse load of corn," which was as much as a horse could fetch upon his back.

Is Thaw Sane?

On Wednesday June 22, fifty witnesses were summoned in behalf of Harry K. Thaw in his fourth attempt to obtain freedom from the asylum at Matteawan. The selection of the jury occupied the entire session of the court. This, however, was done more quickly than in previous times when his juries have been selected.

Thursday, with John B. Stanch-field his attorney the testimony began.

Thirteen witnesses including four jurors at his former trials, two chaplains, a physician and a keeper at the Tombs, where he had at times taken up his abode; a lawyer who had met Thaw in New Hampshire, two newspaper men with whom he had had many interviews during the past strenuous years; a juror in civil proceedings instituted by one of Thaw's former lawyers against his mother and Thaw himself declared that there existed no symptoms of delusion. His composure on the witness stand was marvelous and he told the story of his escape from the asylum; how he left because he believed himself to be perfectly well balanced and besides that while there they told him he was sane. He also told of his subsequent travels through some of the New England states and Canada.

Deputy Attorney-General Cook in his address to the jury stated that the whole history of the Thaw case would be dragged to light again during this trial in the attempt of the State to prove that he is a morally perverted, incurable para-noiac.

It is said that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will appear if requested to do so.

Our Animal Friends Need Protection

A touching story was told by a member of a party that was traveling along on the fire line in Ferdinand, when they chanced upon a poor mother rabbit lying almost cold in death where some hunter had left her after achieving his object which was apparently to kill merely for the sake of killing.

There cuddling close to the side of the dead mother were two baby rabbits left to suffer, and all simply to The reception given to the members of the Cradle Roll, their mothers and grandmothers in the Church parlors, Wednesday afternoon, June 16, was a very successful and delightful occasion. The weather being all that could be desired helped much. Seventeen babies were present and seemed hugely to enjoy each other's society and that of their elders. The dining table was set in the ladies' parlor and made a decidedly pretty picture when all the folks, little and big were seated at it. Refreshments of crackers, cookies, ice cream and cake were served in abundance. The parlors were tastefully decorated with flowers and ferns. The central decoration on the dining table was a small cradle filled with pansies and maiden hair fern.
